Re: Central Baptist Church renovations

Dear Mr. Wilson,

As Chairman of the Central Baptist Church Building Committee, I wanted to take the opportunity to share my perspectives of your company, as general contractor for our church renovations. There are three factors that determine the success or failure of a general contractor in a commercial renovation: the commitment of the owner, the quality of the project management and the knowledge of the site superintendent.

As a business owner, you won the bid to provide renovations to our Church because of your demonstrated commitment to provide a quality building renovation experience to Central Baptist Church. You assured the committee that you had the ability and desire to work in the Church’s best interest. Your willingness and commitment to help the Church discover ways to save money while delivering a quality renovation was a key in our decision making process.

You placed the overall success of the Project Management in the hands of Barry Henderson, which was a wise choice. Barry has proven to be a quality Project Manager. As a former president of a large homebuilding company, I had high expectations for a smooth-running, well organized renovation. Barry demonstrated clear concise communication on all issues of the project which went a long way in ensuring that our expectations were met.

Your selection of Matt Rhodes to be the managing Site Superintendant was also a very wise choice on your part. From day one, Matt took control of the job and effectively managed the numerous subcontractors that were involved in the renovation project. Matt took the time to know and understand the needs and expectations of the Church staff that are present at the Church every day. Matt did a superb job of addressing the staff’s needs while managing the subcontractors who worked on the renovation.

The successful completion of Central Baptist Church’s renovation project by Wilson & Company, Inc. was the result of your commitment to provide a great renovation experience, which was demonstrated by the strong project management of Barry Henderson and the excellent coordination demonstrated by Matt Rhodes. As Chairman of the Building Committee I want to thank you for a job well done.

Sincerely,

Bill Graham
Building Committee Chairman
